Condition

<input type="checkbox"/> excellent	<input type="checkbox"/> deteriorated
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> good	<input type="checkbox"/> ruins
<input type="checkbox"/> fair	<input type="checkbox"/> altered

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

This frame farmhouse is a two-story, four-bay structure with aluminum siding. The foundation is concrete block. A full width rear addition has a shed roof. On the front (east) façade is a one-story porch enclosed with walls and siding on the south half and with screening on the north end. The rear façade has a full shed roof porch. The main façade faces east with four windows asymmetrically paired on either side of the main door. Several of the windows have been replaced with new double hung units with sandwich muntins and fixed shutters.

The main roof is side gable, standing-metal seam, with the gabled ends on the north and south elevations. A freestanding, stuccoed chimney stands on the north elevation of the main block with a fireplace base on the first floor only. An interior furnace flue chimney projects from the rear shed roof addition.

The oldest section is said to have been the rear section and to have been built of log. There is no evidence for this. The present owners have done extensive work on the house and have found no evidence of log construction. The rear section is also said to have a slate roof, which is no longer extant.<sup>1</sup>

A large bank barn once stood southwest of the house. A log house that may have been slave quarters stood behind the main dwelling house. It was in ruinous condition in the early 1900s and was demolished by the late 1930s. There were at least two other log outbuildings, including a tobacco house that was immediately adjacent to Woodfield Road. The bank barn and tobacco house were still standing in the c1940s but were likely demolished by the time of E. Brooke Lee's subdivision of the property in 1960.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>According to Mrs. (Moyer) Bowman, who grew up in this house, the oldest part was the rear shed-roof portion. She says it was built of logs and had stove-type chimney flues, as well as the first-slate roof of the area. The Maryland Historical Trust also cites the Moxley house as having the first slate-roof for this area.

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance projects, complete evaluation on a DOE Form – see manual.)

The Ezekial Moxley House has been greatly altered. The original log rear section apparently is no longer standing. It was said to have had the first slate roof in the area. The slate roof is no longer extant. The farm included a collection of buildings which are now no longer standing.

The present main dwelling block could date as late as c1896 when it was acquired by Hattie Moxley. It was already built by 1917 when the Moyers acquired the property.

From 1835 to 1869, the Young family owned about 81 acres including the property in question. The Martenet and Bond map shows a "G Young" in this vicinity in 1865. The property had been subdivided from James Day's 244 acre property in 1805 and conveyed to William Willson of John.<sup>3</sup>

Ezekial Moxley acquired the property in 1869 and expanded it to 238 acres. Moxley was born in Frederick County in 1848. He is shown living in this vicinity on the 1879 Hopkins map.

George and Anna Moyer acquired the 250-acre farm from Hattie Moxley in 1938. Their daughter, later known Mrs. (Moyer) Bowman of Takoma Park, recalled the original log house that became a rear addition of the main dwelling house. She also recalled other log outbuildings still standing. Some of the log structures were taken down by the Moyers, and others were removed between 1940s and 1960. The Moxley House was purchased by E. Brooke Lee who subdivided the property in 1960, leaving the house on its present 22,183 square foot lot.

To whom it may concern:

We currently reside at 25008 Woodfield Road in Damascus (The Ezekial Moxley House) and are responding in writing regarding the possibility it will be added to the Master Plan for Historic Preservation.

I have previously spoken with Clare Lise Cavicchi regarding our concerns over having our home added to the Master plan. Our first concern surrounds the fact that our house is currently under contract for sale. We did not receive the information about the hearing until after the house had been placed on the market. We are very concerned that having the home designated as historic will possibly threaten the sale of our home and possibly limit those who would be interested in the purchasing the home if the sale were to fall through. Even if we were not moving, we would not want the home added to the master plan as we feel the negatives far out weight the positives and do not feel that the house is that historically significant.

Secondly, we have looked through all the information and strongly question whether or not the house has the historical significance it is thought to have. When we first moved in and I saw the survey from 1976, I went to the Damascus library to look for any information on the home. I was led to a book about the Moxley's and their family history. I could not find anywhere in the family history a record of Ezekial Moxley having lived at this address or any pictures of the property. While it is possible that I missed it, I felt I was thorough, as I was interested in learning more about the history of the house. Also the Draft amendment states that Ezekial Moxley owned the property from 1869- 1875. Per our tax records, the house is listed as being built in 1910. Our realtor who was born and raised in the Damascus area and is very familiar with this type of house feels the house is much more consistent with what would be seen in a home built in the early 1900's, not in the 1800's. The house has also been changed significantly and probably does not look anything close to what it did on the interior. The interior is completely updated with new electrical, drywall, carpeting upstairs, newer kitchen, updated baths and replacement windows through out the upstairs. The exterior has been changed as well. In addition to the aluminum siding, half of the front porch has been enclosed and a deck was added at the side door. We question whether or not the home we live in is the original home on the property. The draft amendment and the information we have from the survey done in 1976 state there is a log portion in the house. In working on the house, replacing the back door, replacing the dishwasher and getting under the house, we have never seen any evidence of log. The walls that would have been exterior walls do not appear to be thick enough to have log underneath. The site survey also states the house originally had a slate roof that was covered. We have not seen any evidence of slate under the tin roof.

Thank you for considering our concerns. To reiterate, if it were up to us, we would not want the house added to the master plan. Not only do we question the historical significance, we are also in the process of selling the house and feel this would greatly impact the sale of an already difficult home to sell. Enclosed is a picture of the house that we believe was taken in the 1940's. It shows the changes made specifically to the front porch and all the buildings that no longer exist.

Sincerely,

Mary & Dan

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a frame farmhouse of unusual style. Unlike most local structures, it features a four-bay, main (east) facade, and the bays are unevenly paired to each side of the central door. A later, one-story screen porch spans the front of the house. On the north end is a large, external chimney that has a fireplace base on the first floor only. The chimney has been covered with stucco. A sloping, shed-roof addition covers the (west) rear of the house. Windows are 6/6.

Ezekiel Moxley House (Rte. 124, Woodfield, Md.)

Spring, 1976

Mrs. (Moyer) Bowman of Takoma Park called. Said she grew up in this house. It was indeed an old Moxley place. The oldest part is the rear shed-roof part. It is built of logs and had stove-type chimney flues. The front is later and is frame. The old log portion has a slate roof (now covered) and was the first house in the area to have a slate roof. Log part had 4 rooms, 2 up and 2 down, kitchen and dining room down. The Moyers moved into it-April of 1917. Sold in 1936 or '37. The really old log house-possibly a slave quarters-sat to the rear of this house-it had large chimney fireplaces, and was in an abandoned, ruinous condition in the early 1900's-gone now. Her father tore down the old log house or slave quarters. There were also 2 old log outbuildings-ice house, etc., that are gone now. Her father helped move and build the old store on Old Georgetown Rd. in Bethesda-across from N.I.H. about 1921 or '22.-A Will Lewis builder? Her husband's family-the Bowmans-owned several large mills in Gaithersburg. Another old house, part log, was on Welsh Road at the sewage treatment plant on Magruder Branch. This was the old Ed Thompson place. (Note: this was probably the old Boylston farm, demolished ca. 1973 (without my knowledge) on M-NCPPC or WSSC property. Mr. J.E. Duvall of Rte. 124 knew area's history-died last year or so at age of 103.)
